Page 2 The software included in this section is very useful in your computer's daily application. It was divided into several categories, including: security (antivirus and firewall software, among others), system tools (improving Windows systems) and audio video (everything you need to play audio and video files on your computer). For gamers, this is a special category that contains software that is mandatory for players, such as GPU drivers, game console emulation software, and customers for a variety of digital distribution platforms (such as Steam, Uplay, and Origin). In the Software category, you can find utility software available for free (not for commercial use) that can improve your computer's performance in many ways. The software includes codec packages, must play all types of movies, communicators, internet browsers, apps for opening and/or editing audio files and video clips, data download managers, etc. These include: driver packages, necessary to get most of the Radeon and GeForce GPUs, hardware platform emulators (virtual computers and consoles - both new and old), applications that improve your computer's performance in video games, tools for creating/changing games, software to customize controllers (such as gamepads) etc. There are both free full versions (free software) and trials (shareware). Fix for mass Effect Andromeda bug, where your cursor gets stuck in the middle of the screen and doesn't disappear after leaving the menu Has anyone heard or found a real fix to the cursor problem yet? It seems to be affecting a number of people, myself included, and they still haven't reviewed it. It seems that such any are easy to fix, but what I know. I tried to hold onto the game until they fixed it, so I don't have to look at the stupid cursor in the middle of the screen every cutscene. The new Earned Get 1K upvotes icon on your post life selection of my Cat Earned 210 hasn't progressed far into the game (game from Europe), but I'm also experiencing this problem. Every time a mouse cursor can be used (i.e. reading a data bar or selecting a response on a conversation wheel during a scene), there is a chance that the mouse cursor will not disappear (as it should), but instead remains visible and centered on the screen. One workaround I found to open the menu (map, inventory, esc.menu) and move the mouse. The resumption of the data bar also seems to be working. After leaving the menu, the cursor disappears properly. Not a game violation, but yes, it interferes with the immersive part. My PC specs: OS: Win 7 (x64) Schedule. Highlighted Highlighted Highlighted Highlighted Highlighted Highlighted Mass Effect Andromeda was driving me insane, so I took a look at a few games with the same level of mouse warpiness and added a new feature to tone down the anti-warp system. This system was always there, but the screen coverage area was not customizable and users experienced deadzones in the center of the screen where the user interface would behave strangely without me ever explaining what was going on. It has to take care of all this, probably in the most customizable way anyone has ever tried for a fashion like this - the provided bar isn't very high because I only know about ReShade, and it's not solve this problem videogame_asset My games When logged in, you can up to 12 games that will be displayed as favorites in this menu.
